TODAY'S GAME

Homecoming fans can expect an exciting ball game today with two teams that exploit the passing offense to the utmost.

Last week the Lumberjacks' passing game piloted by quarterback Mike Olson shifted to high gear for the first time this season against Northern Illinois University Huskies at DeKalb. Olson and company, flanker Bob Grey, tailback Sonny Campbell, end Steve Maier and fullback Bud Wiedoff combined for 18 passes and four TDs as the Lumberjacks took a 43-14 win to boost the Axer record to 3-2.

The Matadors have been having their troubles this season compiling a 1-2 record, but even in last Saturday's 35-12 loss to Fresno State, the Matadors displayed a dangerous passing attack. Sparking their passing attack are quarterbacks Steve Hartman and newcomer Mike O'Neil. Hartman has hit 60 percent of his passes this season. O'Neil, who made his first appearance in the Fresno game, completed 16 of 21 pass attempts, a fantastic 76 percent completion. Their favorite targets are flankers Brian Ashley and Randy Whitsitt, both speedy runners.

It is very likely that the outcome of the game this afternoon will hinge on the defensive units of both teams, and if the Lumberjack defense continues to function like it did last Saturday the Matadors will have trouble getting into high gear. Against the NIU Huskies the stout Axer defense held the Huskies to 86 yards rushing and 80 yards passing.
